Journal of Agricultural Policy is an internationally double blind peer reviewed journal published by CARI Journals USA LLC. The journal contains papers on sustainable crop production systems, economics of crop production, agricultural development, food access and nutrition. The journal provides vast knowledge on the principles and practice of crop and animal husbandry production systems. It also aims at addressing the challenge of global food security as well as probing the constraints physical, biological, socio-economic and political, which not only limit crop and food production but also the ability of people to access a healthy diet. Journal of Agricultural Policy is a world-class journal, publishing multi-disciplinary and geographically differentiated relationships between agricultural production systems, policy arenas and their relationships.
